An aerial view of a tropical island paradise, seen from the perspective of someone looking out of an airplane window. The image shows a large, lush green island on the left, connected to a smaller, sandy island in the center by a narrow causeway. The water is a vibrant turquoise color, transitioning to a deeper blue as it extends into the distance. Several smaller, forested islands are scattered throughout the scene. The sky is a clear, pale blue. In the foreground, the dark, curved edge of an airplane window frame is visible on the right side, framing the view.
